It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

THE PRIORY OF ST. BEES.

A SMALL nunnery was founded here about the year 650 by Bega, an Irish saint,<sup>1</sup> from whom the parish takes its name, and where a church was subsequently erected, dedicated in honour of the foundress. The priory and parish are variously called in ancient evidences, Kirkebybetok, Kirkby Begock, and Begoth, which latter name is British, and derived from Begog, signifying little young.

Sandford's MS.<sup>2</sup> gives the following traditional account of the foundation of the nunnery:—"This Abbie, by tradition, built upon this occasion, (for the time I refer you to the chronicles:)—That there was a pious and religious lady-abbess, and some of her sisters with her, driven in by stormy wether at Whitehaven, and [the] ship cast away ith harbour, and so destitute. And so she went to the lady of Egremont castle for reliefe. That lady, a godly woman, pitied her distress, and desired her lord to give her some place to dwell in; which he did, at the now St. Bees. And she and her sisters sewed and spinned, and wrought carpets and other work, and lived very godly lives, as gott them much love. She desired Lady Egremont to desire her lord to build them a house, and they would lead a religious life together; and many wolde joine with them if they had but a house and land to live upon. Where-with the Lady Egermond was very well pleased, and spoke to her lord he had land enough and [should] give them some to lye up tresure in heaven. And the Lord laughed at the Ladye, and said he would give them as much land as snow fell upon the next morning and in midsummer day. And on the morrow looked out at the castle window to the sea side, 2 miles from Egremont, all was white with snow for three miles together. And thereupon builded this St. Bees Abbie, and gave all those lands was snowen unto it, and the town and haven of Whitehaven; and sometimes after, all the tithes therabout, and up the montains and Inerdale forest, eastward, was appropriated to this abbey of St. Bees; which was got by one Mr. Dacres, of kindred to the Lord Dacres; gott a long lease of it at fall of Abbies, and married one Mrs. Latos of the beck hall, Millom; who afterwards married Squire Wybridge [Wybergh] of Clifton in Westmorland, who purchased the inheritance of this Abbie of the crowne, and sold it to old Sir John Lowther, who gave it to his yonger son, Sir Christopher Lowther, Kt. Bart. soon after."

<sup>1</sup> From the calendar of saints' days it appears that St. Bega or St. Bees is commemorated on the 6th of September; and St. Bega, virgin, on the 22nd of November. Sancta Bega died the day before the calends of November.—Life of the Saint. Ingulphus mentions a little bell at Croyland, which is called Bega.

It does not appear that the nunnery of Saint Bees was ever endowed, or that it continued for any length of time as a voluntary society. It is probable enough that it was ruined and dispersed in the Danish wars. Indeed the historian of her life refers to the Danish ravages as the cause which wrapped in oblivion the tomb of Bega for centuries. But although no succession of Abbesses has been transmitted to us, and no historian can give us any intelligence of the endowment of this nunnery, still it seems scarcely probable that it would have been of such brief duration as is generally supposed. If the bell at Croyland abbey were named Bega, in commemoration of the Cumbrian saint, nearly three centuries after the foundation of St. Bees nunnery, it would seem as if there had been successors in the nunnery who cherished the name of their first foundress, and transmitted it to posterity. Otherwise the name would scarcely have attracted the notice of Abbot Turketul. Moreover, the recorded fact, that the monastery was afterwards built on the site of the nunnery, is another reason which would induce us to assign a longer existence to the nunnery than is usually supposed. Nearly five centuries elapsed between the foundation of the nunnery and that of the priory, in which time the site would have been forgotten, had the nunnery perished upon the death of Bega. Who shall now assert that the abbot of Croyland did not attempt to commemorate the name and virtues of the Cumbrian Abbess, at a time when he beheld her nunnery visited with a recent but overwhelming desolation, and her name in danger, for the first time, of perishing amidst the ruins of her own foundation?

In the reign of Henry I., William de Meschines, son of Ranulph,<sup>3</sup> and brother of Ranulph, first Earl of Cumberland<sup>4</sup> restored the religious house, making it a cell of a prior and six Benedictine monks to the mitred abbey of St. Mary of York.<sup>5</sup> By his charter he granted to God, St. Mary of York, and <sup>5</sup> The priory of Neddram, in Ulster, was cell to the priory of St Bees, having been granted by Sir John de Courcy, a descendant of William Meschines. Respecting this Irish dependency of St. Bees, a small parchment roll, considerably mutilated, remains in the Cottonian collection. It consists of nine documents very closely written, concluding with a bull of Pope Honorius III., dated 1216, confirming the endowment.

St. Bega and the Monks serving God there, all the woods within their boundaries and everything within the same, except hart and hind, boar and hawk; and all liberties within their bounds which he himself had in Coupland, as well on land as on the water both salt and fresh.

Ranulph de Meschines, son of the above William, confirmed his father's grants to the priory of the church of St. Bees, and seven carucates of land there; the chapel (capella) of Egremont, and the tithes of his demesne in Copeland, and of his men there; and the tithes of all his fisheries, hogs, venison, pannage, and vaccaries throughout all Copeland; and the manor of Anenderdale; the grant by Waltheof of the church (chapel) of Stainburn; and Ketel's grant of the church of Preston; and two bovates of land and one villein, in Rotington; which Reiner gave unto them: and the churches of Whittington and Botele, which they had by the gift of Godard: and Swarthoft, given to them by William de Lancastre, son of Gilbert. And he granted to them all the woods within their boundaries, from Cuningshaw to the sike between Preston and Hensingham, which runs down to Whitehaven, and there falls into the sea; and whatever they can take in those woods, except hart, hind, boar, and hawk.<sup>6</sup> charter, (circa A.D. 1192,) confirmed to the priory the grants of his ancestors—fourteen salmons which they had by the gift of Alan, son of Waltheof; and by the same gift half a carucate of land in Aspatric; and six acres of land in the same vill, by the gift of the said Alan; and six salmons, which they had by the gift of the lady Alice de Romeley; and half a mark of silver by the same donation, out of the fulling mill at Cockermouth, and one messuage in the same vill. He also granted to them one mark of silver out of the said fulling mill yearly. “Hiis testibus. Domino Galfrido de Chandever. Domino Thoma Keret. Domino Willielmo de Ireby. Willielmo de Driffeld tunc senescallo de Cockermutha. Alano persona de Caldebec. Hugone de Moricebi. Ada de Haverington. Galfrido de Talentir. Johanne de Brigham, et multis aliis.”<sup>7</sup>

William de Fortibus, Earl of Albermarle, by his

By the coucher book of Furness abbey, it appears that the prior of St. Bees was included in a commission from Pope Honorius, about the year 1200. This commission was respecting the right of sepulture at Hawkshead, Dalton the mother church being twenty miles distant.

In 1315, during the invasion of Robert le Brus, the priory of St. Bees, together with the manor houses of Stainburn and Cleator, and the western part of Cumberland, were visited by a party of Scots, under the command of James Douglas. The priory was pillaged, and the manor houses were destroyed. On this occasion, although the religious house fared better than the neighbouring secular ones, still it seems not improbable that the holy prior and his company of "six monks at the least," would experience that treatment from the hostile Scots which Sir Walter Scott makes Wamba describe in Ivanhoe: "Pray for them, with all my heart," says he, "but in the town, not in the green wood, like the abbot [prior] of St. Bees, whom they caused to say mass, with an old hollow oak tree for his stall."

About the year 1523, the monks of St. Bees appear to have been alarmed by a meditated invasion of this "angle of Cowplande." The following letter<sup>s</sup> was written by the prior, Alanby, to the Lord Wm. Dacre, lord-warden of the West Marches, praying for help:—

To the Lord Dacres.

My right honorable and myst speciall good Lord, in my most lawley maner I recomende me unto your good Lordship, ever more beseiking our Lorde God to reward your good Lordship for me at all tymes. by your awne dayely bedeman

Dan Robert Alanby, prior of Sainct

Bees aforesaid.<sup>9</sup>

An inspeximus was dated at St. Bees, Sept. 11,

<sup>9</sup> This letter, according to Hearne, was written A.D. 1523, 15th Henry VIII.

1473, by Henry Percy, fourth Earl of Northumberland and lord of the honour of Cockermouth, of the charter of William de Fortibus, Earl of Albemarle.

“In the reign of Henry IV., a Richard Hunte was appointed to St. Bees as a free chapelry in the gift of the Crown, but the Abbot of Saint Mary’s remonstrated with the King, and the grant was revoked. Bishop Turner mentions that under this cell there was a small nunnery situate at Rottington, about a mile from Saint Bees. This is confirmed by the ancient names of places still retained there, but few other vestiges are now to be found.”

Whilst on the subject of the priors of St. Bees, their rank as barons of the Isle of Man cannot justly be overlooked. As the abbot of the superior house, St. Mary’s, at York, was entitled to a seat amongst the parliamentary barons of England, so the prior of St. Bees was baron of the Isle of Man. As such he was obliged to give his attendance upon the kings and lords of Man, whensoever they required it, or, at least, upon every new succession in the government. The neglect of this important privilege would probably involve the loss of the tithes and lands in that island, which the devotion of the kings had conferred on the priory of St. Bees. An abbot from Ireland, and another from Scotland, were also constrained by the same religious liberality, to appear in Man, as barons, when called upon.

On the dissolution, the revenues of this priory, according to Dugdale, were £143 17<sup>s</sup> 2<sup>d</sup>; or by Speed's valuation, £149 19<sup>s</sup> 6<sup>d</sup>.

From these statements it appears that there were only two religious houses in the county more amply endowed than the priory of St. Bees.<sup>10</sup>

Edward VI., in the seventh year of his reign (1553), granted to Sir Thomas Chaloner Knt., the manor, rectory, and cell of St. Bees, with all its rights, members, and appurtenances, and all the possessions belonging to the same in St. Bees and Ennerdale, and elsewhere in the county of Cumberland (not granted away by the Crown before); to hold to the said Thomas Chaloner, his heirs and assigns, in fee farm for ever, of the king, his heirs and successors, as to his manor of Sheriff-Hutton in Yorkshire, in free and common socage, by fealty only, and not in capite; paying to the Crown yearly the fee farm rent of £143 16<sup>s</sup> 2½<sup>d</sup>.

In the 4th and 5th Philip and Mary (1557), the king and queen granted to Cuthbert Scot, Bishop of Chester, and his successors, the said yearly rent, subject to the payment of £43 8<sup>s</sup> 4<sup>d</sup> per annum to the Crown.

The Wyberg family succeeded Sir Thomas Chaloner in the possession of the estates, who, having been sufferers for their loyalty during the great Rebellion, mortgaged St. Bees to the Lowther family; and on a suit instituted by Sir John Lowther of Whitehaven the equity of redemption was foreclosed, and the estate decreed in chancery to him and his heirs in the year 1663, in which family it has still remained, and now forms part of the possessions of the Earl of Lonsdale.

In 1622, Bishop Bridgeman, who then held the see of Chester, ordered the inhabitants of the five chapelries of Eskdale, Ennerdale, Wasdale-Head, Nether-Wasdale, and Loweswater, to contribute to the repairs of this, the mother church.

In 1705, the church of St. Bees was certified by James Lowther, Esq., of Whitehaven, the improPRIATOR, at £12 per annum. The benefice is a perpetual curacy, in the impropriation and patronage of the Earl of Lonsdale.

The ancient priory church, now the parish church of St. Bees, is a cruciform building of considerable size and beauty; a rude but noble work of that interesting period in which the Norman style of architecture passed gradually away into the Early English. The several parts of it are given below, with the estimated dates of their erection.

1. Nave and aisles, — west door, south wall and buttresses, tower piers (internal masonry and bases now hidden), Late Norman, circa 1150; west end circa 1200; six arches on each side, with five pillars of various designs, Early English, circa 1250. Clerestory windows, and the north wall of north aisle, Debased, probably 1611.

2. Tower, — the casing of piers, arches, and lower part of staircase turret, circa 1200.

The upper part is of later date, but the Debased windows of 1611 have been built up, and the Tower has been carried up to the height of more than a hundred feet, 1858.

Its eastern arch is filled up with a rubble wall, in which are a round-headed door (now hidden) and two windows of Debased work.

The pier capitals are of very unusual design, but genuine and curious.

3. North transept, — circa 1200; genuine and interesting both outside and in. Some remains of colouring have been discovered, and some relics. A plain and mutilated aumbry has left a trace in the north wall.

4. South transept, — west wall, circa 1200; east wall, Debased, 1611; south wall, new. In the old walling has been found nearly all the upper part of a fine Transition door, brought as rubble from the old priory buildings.

5. The chancel, or Lady chapel, has a south aisle, now ruined, of the fourteenth century. The original chancel is a very noble edifice of circa 1200, and ranks high among contemporary buildings, not indeed for size or delicacy of workmanship, but for beauty of design. The interior (and especially the east end) is very striking. In the north wall is one window of Transitional character (circa 1200) and formerly of two lights, which possibly gave light to the altar of the choir, and certainly, by the difference of its design, suggests the idea of some corresponding internal arrangements.

When the Priory was dissolved the whole church was unroofed and became an utter ruin. The tower fell, crushing the east wall of the south transept, and the clerestory and the north wall of the nave disappeared. About 1611 the need of a Parish Church seems to have been felt; the chancel was left in ruins; through it the parishioners went, entering the church through the east tower arch. A wall was run up one bay from the west end, and the holy table was there placed. The necessary rebuilding was done in a rude but substantial way, the old domestic buildings serving for a quarry.

The church, thus reversed, remained in use till about forty years ago, when the altar was removed to the eastern end of the nave, and a diminutive chancel formed for it by an alcove. The upper part of the western wall of 1611 was broken down to make room for a gallery, the font set in its right place, and other alterations made, which, though not worthy of this fine church, show perhaps as much taste and knowledge as were possible at the time.

In 1855 the transepts were repaired, reroofed, and added to the Parish Church. In 1858 a fine peal of eight bells was purchased by subscription, and the tower raised to receive them.

These restorations have been carried out after the designs of Mr. Butterfield.

In 1849 a handsomely carved oak reading-desk was presented by the late Rev. Dr. Parkinson, and in the following year a pulpit to match it was erected, the gift of persons connected with the place, including the late Rev. Dr. Fox, Provost of Queen's College Oxford. A handsome font has been presented by Mr. Howes, contractor for the restorations. The font cover is the gift of the late Captain Fitchet.

The communion-plate appears to have been presented by the benevolent archbishop whose memory is so intimately connected with the place as the founder of the Free Grammar School. It bears the date 1571, and the arms of the archiepiscopal see of York impaled with those of Grindal.

Some fragments of the ecclesiastical buildings anterior to the Norman Priory still exist. A Saxon impost, with a bas-relief of Beowulf (?) and the Dragon, is built into the south aisle wall of the nave outside. And two fragments of crosses, found in the foundations of the west end, are placed close to the west door inside, with some sepulchral stones of very early date.

The lower part of a churchyard cross of the seventh or eighth century, stands in its ancient place to the north of the church. Its unusual situation probably shows a change in the position of the church.

The registers commence in 1538, and are perhaps the most perfect in the county.

A bust of the late Rev. William Ainger, D.D., by Lough, is placed in the church over a monumental slab bearing the following inscription :

To the Memory of
WILLIAM AINGER, D.D.

Late Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, Canon of Chester, and for 24 years Incumbent of the Parish and Principal of the Clerical Institution of St. Bees,
Who died Oct. 20, 1840. Aged 55 years.

Exemplary in all the relations of social life,

Gifted with a kind temper, of sound learning, and high principles,
He gained the love and respect of all who had the privilege of his friendship.

As a Parish Priest he was faithful in preaching the doctrines
And steadfast in upholding the discipline of the Apostolical Church ;
And he continued during the best years of his life

To sustain the cause of religious Truth,

By his writings and public teaching ; above all,

By his unwearied devotedness to the Good of the Clerical Institution,
Which was begun under his superintending care,

And where he trained for the Ministry of the Church,
Both in England and its Colonies, several hundred Labourers,

Who entered on their sacred duties,

Strengthened by his lessons of wisdom,

Animated by his zeal, and guided by his example.

To commemorate such important services, and labours so highly blessed,

This monument was erected by a subscription of his sorrowing friends and pupils.

May I die the death of the righteous, and may my last end be like his.

THE COLLEGE.

This Institution, for the instruction of candidates for holy orders, was established in 1817 by the Right Reverend George Henry Law, D.D., then Lord Bishop of Chester, and subsequently of Bath and Wells.

The first principal of the College was the Rev. William Ainger, B.D., (afterwards D.D.,) who was also Perpetual Curate of St. Bees. Bishop Law gave £200 to procure from Queen Anne's Bounty the further sum of £300, to build the Principal's house.

The choir of the priory church, which had been roofless for upwards of two centuries, was repaired and fitted up for the purposes of the Institution at the expense of the Right Honourable William, Earl of Lonsdale.

One of the lecture rooms is used as the library, and contains some valuable works. Here is a full-length portrait of the late Dr. Ainger, the first Principal of the College, painted by Lonsdale, partly at the expense of the students. "The students, previous to admission, are expected to be well versed in the Classics, so that the course of study does not exceed two years. In this period the standard divinity works are diligently studied, and such principles inculcated as are likely to form faithful ministers of the Gospel, who, as far as their spheres for exertion will permit, may be able to preserve the Church in its original purity, free from those errors which indistinct notions are apt to engender."

"Who with the ploughshare clove the barren moors,
And to green meadows changed the swampy shores?
Thinned the rank woods; and for the cheerful grange
Made room where wolf and boar were used to range?
Who taught, and showed by deeds, that gentler chains
Should bind the vassal to his lord's domains?
The thoughtful monks, intent their God to please,
For Christ's dear sake, by human sympathies Poured from the bosom of thy Church, St. Bees.

"But all availed not; by a mandate given
Through lawless will the Brotherhood was driven
Forth from their cells; — their ancient house laid low
In Reformation's sweeping overthrow.
But now once more the local Heart revives,
The inextinguishable spirit strives.
Oh, may that power who hushed the stormy seas,
And cleared a way for the first Votaries,
Prosper the new-born College of St. Bees!"

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT WITH REGARD TO THIS COLLEGE IS USUALLY MADE TO CANDIDATES FOR ADMISSION : —

St. Bees College.

Principal — Rev. G. H. AINGER, M.A., late Fellow of St John's College, Cambridge.

Tutor — Rev. J. E. MIDDLETON, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge.

Theological Lecturer — Rev. JOHN SMALLPEICE, St John's College, Cambridge.

THIS College was founded by BISHOP LAW, in the year 1816, endowed by the EARL OF LONSDALE with the Incumbency of the Parish of ST. BEES, and recognized by Act of Parliament, (3 and 4 Vic. cap. 77.) Its object is to supply a good and economical education for candidates for Holy Orders. The time necessary to be spent in the College is, in all cases, not less than two years. This period is divided into four Terms; during which, residence is indispensable. The first Term commences about the 25th of January, and ends towards the 5th of May; the second begins about the 25th of August, and closes about the 5th of December. The third and fourth are like the first and second. Students are required to be in residence some days before the commencement of Lectures, which begin punctually (Sundays excepted) on the 1st of February, and the 1st of September. Students are admitted at the commencement of either Term.

There being no Collegiate Buildings, each Student furnishes himself with a house or lodgings in the village, under the direction and control of the Principal. The expense of board and lodgings, with moderate economy, may be from eighteen shillings to twenty-four shillings a week for each Student. The fee for Tuition is £10 a Term, paid each Term in advance; three guineas are paid by each Student when he comes into residence, in aid of a fund for keeping the College in repair and increasing the Library; the cap and gown cost about £1 10s.; this, with the additional cost of some prescribed books, includes all the necessary expenses. The Librarian, who is generally a distinguished Student of the College, is exempted from the payment of the College fee.

Before any application for admission can be entertained, the Principal must be furnished with Testimonials from two Clergymen of the Church of England; one of these must certify (after a long and intimate acquaintance) that the person in whose behalf it is given is a man of unblemished morality and consistent piety; that he is cordially attached to the Church of England; and fitted, by his general habits, character, and attainments, for the office of the ministry. It is desirable that it should also specify his age and condition, as well as his pursuits from the time when he left school to that in which the certificate is granted. The other Testimonial is to certify, after a sincere and bona fide examination, that the individual desiring admission has such a knowledge of the Greek and Latin languages that he can attend lectures upon the Greek Gospels and Grotius de Veritate with advantage to himself. No Student can continue a member of the College whose conduct is not in all respects satisfactory to the Authorities.

The limits of age are twenty-one and thirty-five. It is desirable that the Testimonials should be sent in as early as possible before the commencement of that Term in which the Student proposes to begin his residence.

The course of study during the four Terms embraces Scriptural and Ecclesiastical History; the Evidences of Religion, external and internal; an expository knowledge of the New Testament; Lectures on the Creeds, and the Articles of Religion; Theology, doctrinal and pastoral; and Latin and English composition, especially that of Sermons.

All necessary books may be procured at ST. BEES, from MR. REAY, the College bookseller.
